

Kiezen Op Feiten – Sprint Update & Plan van Aanpak

1. Introduction

Over the past two weeks I have been limited in my physical and mental well-being.

I experienced fever and physical complaints for which I went to physio, and I also felt mentally suboptimal. This made me less able to actively contribute to the project.

The project started recently and the other team members have already provided commits, which has created a realistic backlog for me.

2. Switch

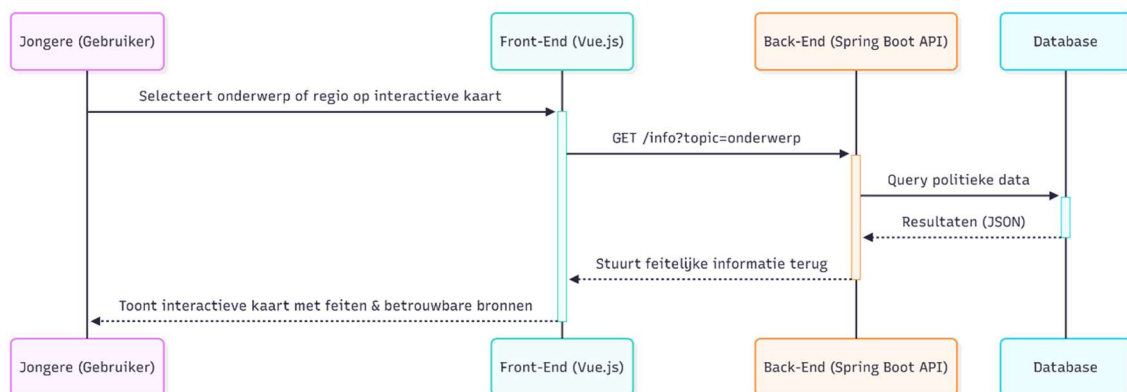

Despite the backlog, I have decided to completely reverse this situation.

I am motivated to give everything for the team and to actively contribute to the project.

I learn from my teammates and want my efforts to be visible and measurable from now on.

I take full responsibility for my contribution and promise that from this moment on I will be consistently present and involved, both physically and, if necessary, from home in case of illness.

3. I made a Sequence Diagram

4. Deliverables

Below is an overview of what I will actually do and how I will work:

Deliverable	Action	Time	Evidence
Transition architecture to reality	Converting sequence diagram / user flows to concrete tasks in front-end/back-end	Upcoming sprint
Sequence Diagram V1	User Flow	Finished	Commit
Peer Review	Asking for and giving feedback	Weekly	Screenshots
Sequence Diagram v2	Incl. Moderator flow	< 1 Day	Screenshot + Commit
Front-End Planning	Vue.js Setup + User story's	Upcoming sprint	Commits
Back-End planning	Spring Boot setup + User story's	Upcoming sprint	Commits

5. Promise

- ❖ From now on I will provide daily commits and updates, so that my contribution is visible and measurable.
- ❖ If I am ill, I take the initiative to work from home and contribute.
- ❖ I actively request peer review and feedback to continuously improve my work.
- ❖ I work 10x harder to catch up and consistently contribute to the project.

6. Slot

I am motivated, focused and completely committed to Choosing By Facts.

I appreciate the team's trust and my role in it and am committed to contributing fully visibly and productively from now on.
